SANYO Commercial Solutions

SANYO to be featured on TLC and WE's Designing Spaces

Wood Dale, IL, September 17, 2008—SANYO Commercial Solutions, a division of SANYO North America Corporation would like to announce that their Ductless Split Cooling Only System; model #12KS71 will be featured on an upcoming episode of Designing Spaces, a home improvement and design show on the TLC (The Learning Channel) and WE (Women's Entertainment) cable networks.

Gary Nettinger, Vice President of the HVAC Division will be featured on the show demonstrating what a ductless split system is, how the unit works and installation tips. The segment is part of the special "Think Green" series, which aims to help homeowners develop living solutions that are more environmentally conscious. "SANYO HVAC is grateful for the opportunity to be recognized as a leader in green product production, and more specifically on products that can improve the indoor air quality (IAQ) of a home, which ultimately translates to a more comfortable and healthy living environment," says Nettinger.

Designing Spaces is a half hour television series that inspires viewers to make every space count, and to enjoy the space they live in. Each episode explores exciting ideas from flea market finds to fine fashion furnishings from renowned leaders in the design, hardware, architecture, houseware, and real estate industry. More information and episode summaries are available on the official website <http://www.designingspaces.tv/>.

Catch the SANYO HVAC episode airing nationally on the WE on September 19th at 8:30 am PST/EST or on TLC on September 20th at 8 am PST/EST. Reruns will also be aired regionally throughout September.
